ALL TOGETHER!

. . . putting it all together!

I can't do this . . . Work, work, work, that's all I ever do . . . Would you help me figure this one out? . . . Do you think I can still get a transfer? Would you believe . . . Let's see, two plus two is four, three plus . . . May I go to the clinic? . . . I forgot my assignment because, well, you see . . . Put your gum in the waste paper basket . . . Why doesn't this machine ever work? May I use the pass? Wait for me after school . . . What do you mean three zeroes! . . . Go get a pass to class . . . Oh no! I think I cut off the peritoneum instead of the mediastium . . . I wasn't the one talking, he was . . . Where's Mr. Ruelf's office? . . . I didn't lose my book, I just forgot where I put it . . . What can I do for extra credit? . . . How do I hate this class . . . Let me count the ways . . . Can I borrow a pencil? . . . How about a piece of paper? . . . Share your book? . . . Do not fold, spindle, or mutilate.

Language arts rifle Rebel minds

Through writing a composition we expressed our ideas and emotions — we communicated. Pinellas County citizens erected a new teaching studio in which members of a teaching team pooled their talents and taught students to write more effectively. The "Rebel Rouser" voiced opinions while it informed the student body. Mrs. Mauney's statue of Shakespeare and model of the Globe theatre brought the past alive and reminded us of his literary masterpieces. At the same time students in humanities created their own masterpieces by putting together stained glass windows.

Science promotes new ideas

The science courses at Dixie provided much for future scientists of this generation. In biology students used their knowledge in setting up terrariums for the study of lizards and frogs. Mr. Levine showed his physics classes that even the simplest instruments, such as a slinky, could be used to prove theories. Some future medics learned how to type their blood in anatomy. In chemistry hard working Rebs put in many hours memorizing formulas, balancing equations, and testing for accuracy. Each student knew he would be an important part of tomorrow.

Abstract theories test Rebs

Study, imagination, and results were all a part of the many phases of math at Dixie. Many students found mathematical instruments of great use for working out various calculations. Some students endeavored to impress their teacher by transporting several books to class, while others did it the hard way by studying and asking numerous questions. Equations, patterns, and symbols made every Reb think for himself. Someday skills learned in these studies may be applied to solving world problems of environmental pollution and over population.

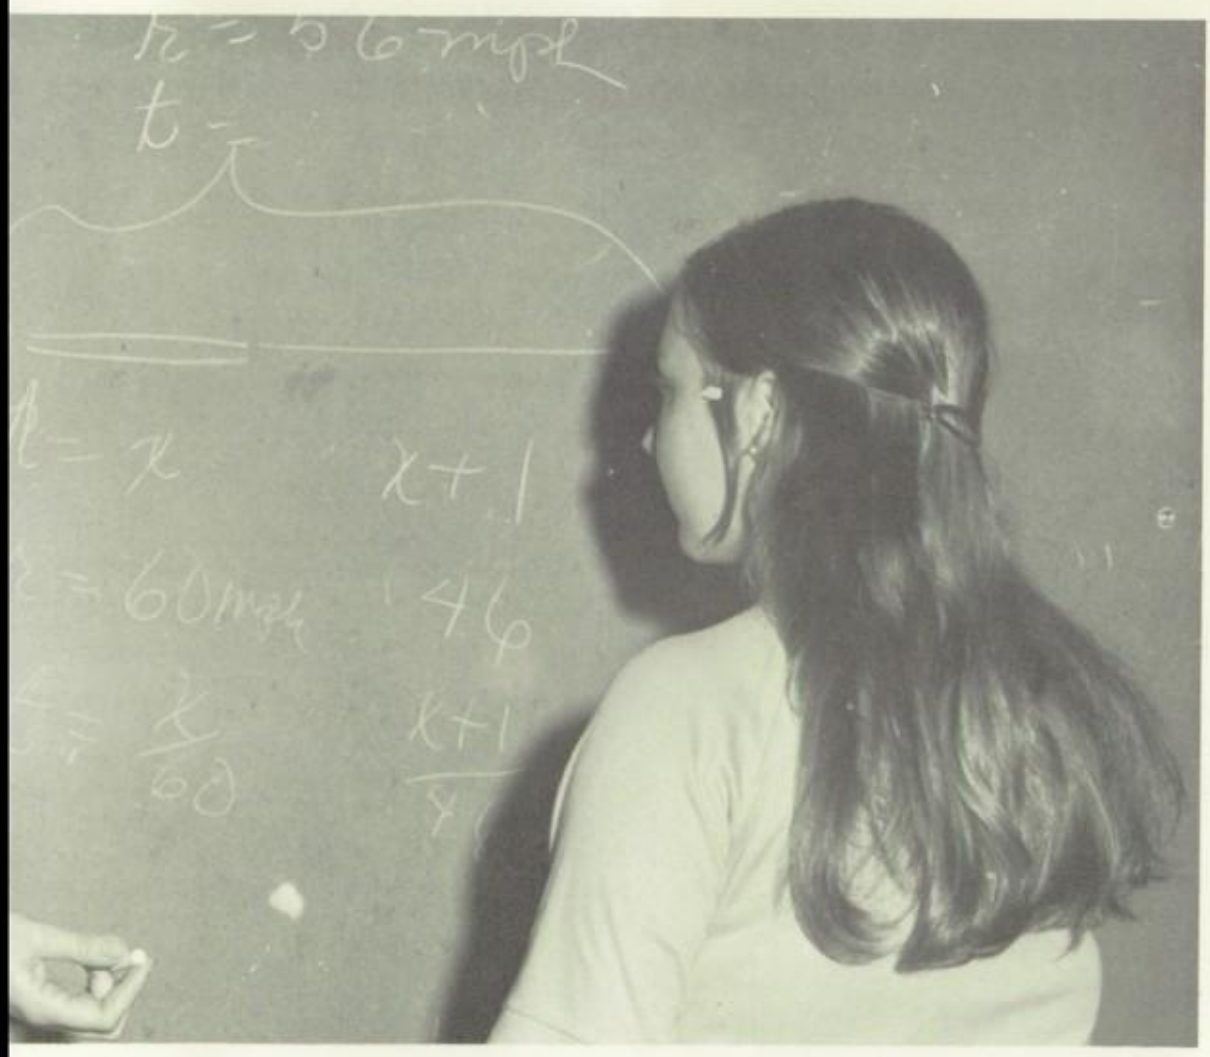
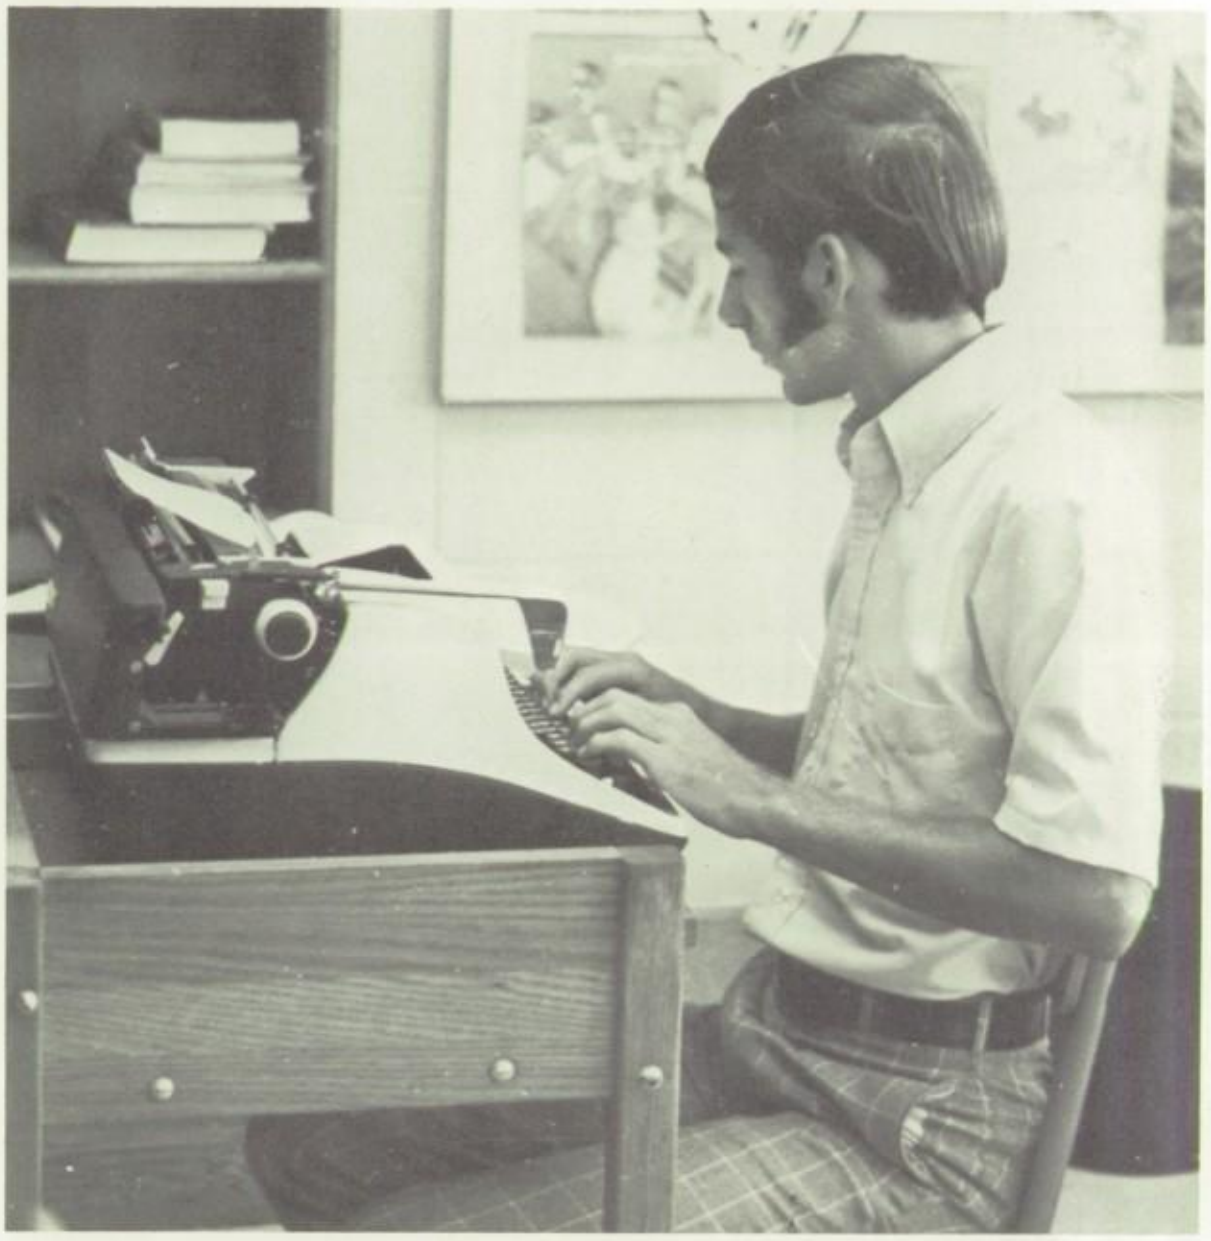
GREECE





Complex computers digest data

Click, click, click, bing! These were the vibrations heard by every student that took typing, business machines, and data processing. Writer's cramp was not an uncommon complaint for kids who took bookkeeping and shorthand. This was the first year students of data processing went to Gibbs High School for a three-hour course. As these students looked to the future, they expanded their minds by mechanical and manual operations. The Rebels of Pinellas County still believed Dixie was top-notch in business courses.

Probing minds ponder outcome

Discussing current events caused numerous thought-provoking questions in the social studies classrooms of Dixie. While some people learned only historical and geographical facts, others in Mr. Waters' Americanism vs. Communism classes carried on active debates about radical organizations and controversial reforms. Concerned students talked over various solutions to these problems. At the same time, many psychology students attempted to master self-expression and determine specific personality traits. Many questions remained unanswered.

Dedicated spirit nets superior

"Oh, no! The judge is coming! Get in line! 5, 6, 7, turn! Dixie Hollins . . . Superior!" These were the sounds of this year's district marching contest where the band earned a superior, again proving "We's No. 1!" Harmonizing, practicing, and perfecting techniques also paid off for the choral department when they staged the successful "Rock-Out." While the girls in Home Ec were learning how to become good homemakers and mothers, the art students were designing their own pottery. Rebel creativity was reflected everywhere throughout the school.

Electronics sparks interests

Electronics classes at Dixie memorized many theories about the "hows" and "whys" of electricity. Students learned to apply these theories and draw conclusions about the future of electricity in our highly technical world. The drafting students put their many talents to the drawing board when they made plans for the new guidance department and drew the blueprints for the dugout for the visiting baseball teams. The vocational classes of electronics and drafting stimulated every Rebel to think for himself.

Candid left: Apprentice technicians grapple with electrifying problem. Candid center top: Electronics students attempt to grasp the scope of one of many problems in electricity. Candid center bottom: Students plugging away at problem find electronics satisying outlet for energy. Candid right: Dan Romine puts useful drafting techniques to work by helping design baseball dugout.

Cosmetology sets new trends

Cosmetology students perfected skills by practicing on anyone who was game. Meanwhile, down the hall the vibrating sound of presses and the pungent smell of ink filled the printing room and the whole 400 wing. Dixie's future printers learned their craft and were ready for employment after graduation. Rebel "shutterbugs," aided by new sinks in the photo lab, snapped, processed, and printed hundreds of pictures for this year's Legend. Meantime, the Advertising Arts Department stressed the expression of individual tastes.

Masonry cements tomorrow

Dixie's carpenters, welders, and masons looked towards their roles in tomorrow's world. While masonry classes worked together to build the dugout for visiting baseball teams, carpentry classes mastered proper methods of forming raw materials into products for everyday use. Ambitious welders learned that a conglomeration of materials, precision, and hard work resulted in useful items, such as lanterns. Although everyone was engaged in the common objective of learning, only many hours of individual effort resulted in the mastering of a craft.

Vocational classes learn skills

"Go over that again . . . the drive shaft is connected to the universal and the universal is connected to the differential . . ." This was a typical conversation held in auto-mechanics before semester exams. At the same time the air-conditioning students talked over the feasibility of air-conditioning the entire school. Next door, general shop created mod lamps, tables, and stools. For the first time sophomores were permitted to enter the machine shop programs. New lathes, mills, and grinders aided these students in their pursuit of a career.

P.E. stresses physical fitness

Vigorous exercising and training changed awkwardness to agility as athletes exerted themselves in an effort to condition their bodies. The girls phys. ed. classes, undaunted by a cold, windy track, ran their way to excellence in fitness. Students made breathtaking jumps, turns, and flips on the trampoline look easy. Meanwhile, in home mechanics girls designed lamps, and acquired a basic knowledge of household repairs. These fundamental facts prepared the girls to cope with the common problem of malfunctioning appliances.

Candid left: Gary Robbins is hung up over physical education. Candid center: Girls run their way to physical fitness. Candid right: Home mechanics projects require lots of patience.

ICC programs winning week

"Vegas '70" incorporated activities of Homecoming, ICC's major project. The club promoted the gambling spirit with an all new computer dating service and matched 20 couples for the weekend events. On Coronation night President Ann Rahmel presented the Court and Queen Marilyn Smith. Balloons and confetti added to the festivities of the game against the Lakeland Dreadnaughts. "The Game" entertained at the dance and 30 couples won door prizes. Mr. Jerry Ruelf, retiring club sponsor, received a flying jacket in appreciation of his decade of service.

Council raps with "Hotline"

Student Council and Senate worked together to better communication between the students, their government, and the administration. For the first time in the school's history, the Council President acquired his own office and a free fourth period, enabling students to present their suggestions during their lunch periods. The groups sponsored an open-forum discussion with experts from "Hotline" to inform students of the possible hazards of drug use. They actively participated in the District IV Student Council Convention in Tampa, for which they won an award.

Rummage and rags reap riches

Senior Representatives conducted many service and social projects. They undertook a "Write Hanoi" campaign, through which students protested the treatment of American prisoners in Viet Nam. A specially created social function committee aided in fund-raising projects: carwashes, rummage sales, and a zip code directory sale. In the spring seniors held their own private dinner at a local restaurant, the first class ever to do so. Senior Week, a tea, and a dinner-dance at the Showboat Dinner Theater topped off the year.

Class, club revive Rebel spirit

Junior Class and Outreach Clubs both promoted spirit — one within the class, the other within the person. Junior Class sold navy blue DHHS nightshirts and participated in the Mayor's Youth Advisory Council Carnival. They sponsored a booth at which people threw sponges at the Mayor. Outreach formed just this year, contributed to the outward discussion of God, in his numerous forms and divisions of faith. Discussion topics, each led by a special committee, included "Heaven-Hell," "Racism," "The Pill," "Dating and Sex," and "Is God Dead?"

Young ideas inspire Legend

17 sometimes — stymied staff members, led by a daring new sponsor, Mrs. Louise Young, strove to produce a yearbook that would particularly appeal to the students. The '71 Legend featured original abstract artwork and more faces than ever before. "Putting it all together," the group worked on Saturdays and Sundays, consumed many boxes of screaming yellow zonkers and invaded various local restaurants to celebrate each successfully met deadline. Parties throughout the year spaced-out the otherwise sane adviser and staff.

Staff presses pollution project

Utilizing 1 gallon of glue, 1 pint of glue thinner, 3 razor blades, 5 light bulbs and 1 bedsheet, "Rebel Rouser" staffers worked hard to produce an informative newspaper. The staff conducted several polls concerning social problems of today. Two new columns, "Clublicity" and "Student Standouts" kept the student body up-to-date with news of Rebel happenings. The staff entered the 34th Annual Press Project. This year the project fought national pollution of air and water. "Rebel Rouser" ran many articles in conjunction with the project.

Candid left top: Marlene Hammons, Laurie Lindeman, and Andrea Borkowski review latest issue of "Rebel Rouser" to seek ways of improvement. Candid left bottom: Fern Bingham, unusual showcase, shows off past issues of "Rebel Rouser." Candid center top: Working with bare essentials, Keith Hart, Mrs. Swisher, and Dana Farmer accomplish amazing feats. "Rebel Rouser" Group — Front: Mrs. M. Fantastick effort produces hit

"The Fantasticks" marked the first all-student effort in both on stage and behind the scenes production. Students coordinated all acting, lighting, and make-up. Drama Club sold cosmetic products and Christmas novelties, and played Santa at a children's home. NHS turned to theatrics to renew interest during tapping assemblies. Skit members portrayed people representative of an honor society requisite; leadership, intelligence, service, and character. Members participated in a "Walk for Mankind" and feasted at a banquet at the end of the year.

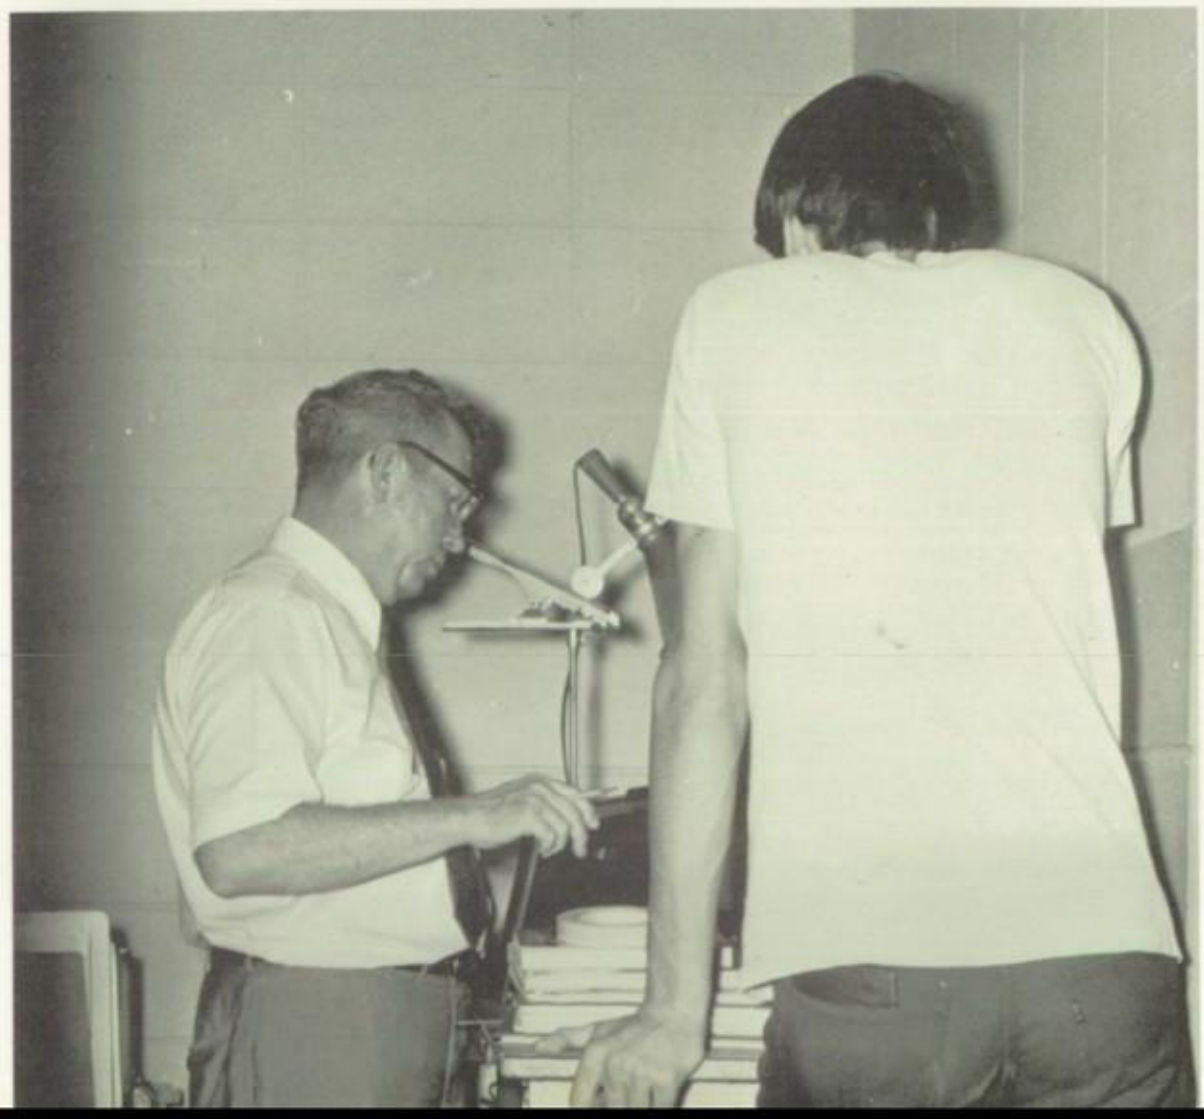
Character



Photography shoots the works

Photography II students, under the groovy guidance of Mr. Calvin Westbrook, worked 3 periods a day to produce pictures for Dixie's annual and newspaper. This year the group created a circulating exhibit to exchange with other photography training centers. Art Wade and Mike Ramsdell, who worked many long hours in cooperation with the two staffs, attended the Fla. Professional Photography Conference in Orlando. The installment of new drying equipment and sinks sliced processing time by 60 percent and brought the department up to "professional capability."

Cosmetologists set man trap

Aspiring young cosmetologists and medical students acquired considerable knowledge through their club activities. A top area stylist spoke before Cosmetology and demonstrated the shag cut. Two Dixie graduates presented the group with new tricks of the trade. The club planned a styling contest and charity beauty salon work. Para Med toured St. Anthony's Hospital and Milton Roy. The group featured two speakers, a modern clinical chemist and a representative from Muscular Dystrophy, and collected for the latter foundation.

Students employ early hours

Cooperative Business Education and Distributive Education students attended early morning classes and gained valuable experience in afternoon jobs. CBE members worked in various local businesses, acquiring knowledge in public speaking, job interviews, shorthand, and typing. As a club, the students gave a party at Christmastime for 19 welfare children. DE members learned about sales and distribution of goods through employment in department stores, supermarkets, and specialty shops. Both clubs sold Rebel flags and pennants, and breakfasted together once a month.

FTA serves faculty tea

FSA, FHA and FTA members all worked in preparation for their careers. Future Secretaries visited offices of business secretaries, conducted a successful Tom Watt sales campaign and sold plastic animals. They collected over fifty dollars for Muscular Dystrophy during Tag Day. Future Homemakers put their talents to use making and serving refreshments for the Homecoming Dance, and holding a covered-dish supper. Future Teachers gave a tea for Dixie faculty during Education Week. The girls sold candy canes and booster bows and visited Nina Harris School.

Fine arts draw wide acclaim

umerous art projects or portfolios were sent over Florida for art exhibi-

Linguists learn foreign customs

Language clubs gained valuable insight into the customs of many countries. German Club celebrated "Oktoberfest" with a reception in the library to welcome new members and 3 foreign students. Der Klub sold chocolate-covered peanuts and raisins. Los Rebeldes sold novelties and held a picnic. Their major project involved collecting for Spanish refugees. French Club learned many traditions of various French-speaking countries and sang French songs. Club attends Latin convention

Latin Club represented Dixie at district and state forums, the latter of which was held in Panama City. Latin linguists captivated Rosedale Nursing Home with their Christmas carols and decorations last December. Along with promoting mathematical interest, National Math Society made alumni stickers for Homecoming Week. Science Club again sponsored the Dixie Science Fair. A tour of the biology lab at Bay Boro Harbor provided knowledge of Pinellas ecology. Money for their many informative projects was raised by selling "Dixie Hollins Rebels" license plates.

DHHS sports energetic girls

Rebelettes sprang into the action at DHHS wearing their new pant suits. These service-oriented girls ushered at all home football and basketball games, choral and drama productions, and swim meets. Selling the spirit decals and programs were other projects sponsored by Dixie Rebelettes. Members of GAA began an energetic year of sports and service by rolling from volleyball, to bowling, to touch football. Money-making projects for the Girls' Athletic Association included car washes and selling bows at Christmas. Both clubs showed a zealous participation at Dixie!

Rotary youth put it together

Rojans and Interact performed many services for school and community. Rojans promoted Spirit Week with patio games and a "Mr. Ugly" contest. They baked and sent 2200 chocolate chip cookies to servicemen overseas and carolled at 6 area nursing homes at Christmas time. Interact members assisted in cleaning the field after home football games and in parking cars at Coronation. They put up American flags in Pinellas Park on national holidays. The club sold ribbons and decals and sponsored a faculty-varsity basketball game.

The young men of Key Club unlocked a year of service by planting palm trees in Dixie's front lawn, selling bows and donuts, winning a first prize at the Mayor's Youth Council Carnival for collecting the greatest amount of tickets at a booth, and attending Kiwanis Club meetings each week. Civinettes proved to be some of the most active girls at DHHS. They cleaned the numerous Rebel trophies, put together Christmas shows, helped at the St. Pete. Toy Workshop, and sold their well-known fruitcake. "Service" was the key word for civic clubs.

Swingers acquire new threads

Whether at football games, parades, practices or contests, Majorettes and Reb-belles accompanied the band. Both groups donned new uniforms this year. Band boosters aided Majorettes in purchasing theirs, while Reb-belles slaved many hours with needle and thread. The twirling corps peddled beanies to raise funds. Reb-belles banqueted and at the end of the year made awards to the "Most Congenial," "Most Emotional," and the "Reb-belle with the Funniest Laugh." Both groups performed with the band in Fun 'n Sun, Festival of States, and Gasparilla parades.

Superior band "Hails to Chief"

Honors galore descended upon the Band. In the fall the group achieved a superior rating in the district marching contest at Clearwater. Soon thereafter, they performed "Hail to the Chief" for President Nixon during his visit at the Bayfront Center Arena. Several members perfected solos and competed for a seat in the All State Band. All members participated in candy sales and carwashes, the profits of which bought new uniforms and jerseys and helped to repair old instruments. At the end of the year Mr. Drumm awarded pins to senior members.

Choir rocks out in fall concert

The Choral Dept. rolled its year off with a fall concert "Rock Out." The number "Power to Rise," performed here for the first time, psyched out parents and students alike, and provoked many favorable comments. Black lights added to the mod effect created by A Capella Choir. During Christmas, ensembles gave many outside concerts and Choir taped a program for a local TV station. The seasonal concert featured the "Hallelujah Chorus" and the traditionally candlelit "Silent Night." In April the Dept. topped its year with the musical "Once Upon a Mattress."

Dismal season rocks Rebels

Rated among the best in the county, Dixie opened what was to be a promising season with a heartbreaking loss to Seminole. Ahead by 13 at the half, the Rebels set the stage for the rest of the season losing 28-20; only third time ever on the home field. Q.B. John Davis was injured on the last play of the game, first of three injuries to him. Injuries to Davis dimmed the season's hopes. Despite brilliant efforts by seniors Rick Rozelle and Frank Trump who collectively snagged 100-plus aerials, the Rebels had the worst season in the school's history.

Four Rebs earn special honors

Four DHHS footballers gained post season honors for achievements during the '70-'71 season. Flanker Rick Rozelle turned in a record performance by catching 70 passes. This qualified Rozelle for first team All-city, county, and conference honors, All-state second team and honorable mention All-American. Dan Bench led the team in tackles and was named to the All-city second squad and P.C.C. first team. He was also named "Unheralded Hero" for play against Largo. Frank Trump and Doug McClaugherty received honorable mention All-city for their play.

Opponents thwart baby Rebs

The 1970-71 junior varsity football season proved to be frustrating for football coach Dave Mauger and his young Rebels. Getting off to a slow start, the inexperienced offense was shutout in the first two contests. They steadily improved as the season progressed as did their counterpart, the defense. Loyal fans saw them almost "put it all together" in the final encounter with Seminole. After completing their schedule the junior gridders moved up to share the burden of a disappointing varsity season. Some sophs moved into starting spots and performed well.

Cagers upset state contenders

The 1970-71 season was not a bad one for Rebel roundballers. Assuming the role of giant killers DHHS handed previously unbeaten and state ranked Clearwater its first loss in two years. The next Goliath to be slain was 9th ranked Jacksonville Jackson. This was achieved by a 61-46 victory. Orlando Boone was the third giant to fall, bowing to sharp shooting and ball control offense 71-69. Sixth ranked Gibbs was almost the last victim. The unpredictable Rebels stayed with the Gladiators all the way before losing by only one point.

Dixieland five perform for fans

Consistent performers for Rebel cager fans, Larry Lloyd, Steve Smith, Darrell Moore, Rick Rozelle and Tom Sheridan compiled some impressive statistics by season's end. Rozelle led the team in scoring, hitting 43% from the floor for 449 points. He pulled down 222 rebounds, only one less than Lloyd who came up with 223. Lloyd hit 42% from the floor totaling 339 points. Rozelle led in the free throw department hitting 75%. Sheridan was second with 68%, but was top thief with 57 steals. Smith passed to the open man for 97 assists and Moore contributed 53.

Foul season bounces jayvees

The junior varsity cagers found the 70-71 schedule frustrating. Their 4-16 record did not accurately show the caliber of the ballplayers on the team. Steady performers Matt Hallam and Rusty Leavitt, who scored 13.5 and 12.2 points per game respectively, led a short, scrappy squad of future varsity players composed of Harlan Heshlow, Corey Zimmerman, Willie Dean, and Victor Ball, among others. Late in the season Coach King called up Leavitt, Hallam, Heshlow, and Zimmerman to varsity duty to give them valuable experience and prepare them for next year's team.

Pepsters effervesce with spirit

Under the guidance of Mrs. Mary Temerson, Dixie's pep squad cheered their way through another year. Cheerleaders led Rebel spectators at each game and sponsored many money-making activities. "Rebels Rule" buttons, booster ribbons, pompoms and "Go Rebels" balloons added to spirit. Funds raised from these projects bought new uniforms and megaphones and helped to finance the girls' enrollment at the American Cheerleading Academy this past summer. This program, held at Leesburg, aided them in perfecting their timing and coordination.

Cheerleaders raise Rebel spirit

The J.V. cheerleaders gained poise and experience under the wing of a veteran varsity squad. They learned of the duties and responsibilities placed upon a varsity spirit-raiser. Once they were learned, many of these duties were shared by the J.V.s. They helped sell pride buttons, balloons and booster ribbons. One responsibility they took over completely was the decoration of both goal posts before every home football game. During basketball season they beguiled J.V. cager fans with new cheers and new uniforms while securing support for the team.

Two-milers outdistance rivalry

Dixie's cross country team was one of the best in the school's history. The team placed fourth in conference and third in the district meets. Cross country then went on to place thirteenth in the state meet out of a field of thirty-two schools. Top runners for the season were Floyd Gaskins, Lou Blowers, Eugene Carroll, Kent Kramer, Randy Lightfield and Paul Rowe. Kent Kramer set a course record for Dixie by posting a time of 9:51 before being disabled by a twisted ankle. With several second year lettermen, next year's team could be a top contender.

Dixie swimmers make waves

The '71 swim season was another record breaking one for the boys' swim team. Backed by many returning lettermen the squad prepared to defend its city and conference titles by starting practice in late November. Senior aces Mike Ruelf, Dan Lilge, Mike Brunton, Bill Latimer and Ernie Rehnke proved unsinkable in their events. Lilge, Latimer, and Brunton added their strength to an already strong freestyle unit. Rehnke lent his talent in the breaststroke and Ruelf rounded out the butterflyers. Coached by Jerry Ruelf, the team outswam area competitors.

Mermaids show aquatic talent

The 1971 edition of the girls' swim team pooled various talents against opposing schools. Senior Holley Fannen contributed her diving talent toward team success and coached promising sophomore and junior divers. Junior freestyler Cindy Watkins performed well and gained experience to be used next season. Terrel Shea, a newcomer to the squad, displayed her freestyling ability and strengthened the team in this department. Pre-season preparation during frosty weather was made more bearable by renting heated North Shore Pool.

Wrestlers pin down PCC title

Behind the ambition of several experienced matmen, wrestling posted an 8-2 season marred only by losses to Manatee and Largo. The losses did not stop the team as they went on to tie Boca Ciega for the conference championship. Top wrestlers during the season were Chris Scott and Dan Bench, both going undefeated during the regular season. The most loyal fan of the team proved to be Dave Mauger, the new head wrestling coach. Highlights of the season included a fourth place finish in the Seminole classic and a brand new wrestling mat.

Classic — Fourth

Rebels bat-tle conference rivals

When the 1971 baseball tryouts were concluded, coach Wallace looked forward to a promising season. Powerful hitting provided by Tom Mullins, Frank Trump and Tom Smith combined with the speedy base-running of Bob Nolan and Steve Smith to give the Rebs a toxic one-two offensive punch. Near flawless fielding in the infield forced competitors to look elsewhere for hits. Workhorses Jim Merrifield and Bill Kimble anchored a pitching staff that kept opposing hitters at bay with a wide variety of pitches. A. J.V. schedule prepared sophomores for next year's varsity.

Cindermen trample opponents

Several laps around the track and a few exercises began the '71 season for Dixie's track men. A new wider and resurfaced track provided the incentive to carry the runners through the long season. Floyd Gaskins, Kent Kramer, Dave Rodgers, Eugene Carroll and Randy Lightfield led the distance team while Steve Quackenbush and Mike Grimes added points for the sprinters. In the field events the high jump, shot put, discus and broad jump all combined to stifle competition, as the cindermen looked forward to a strenuous spring season.

Netmen outserve opponents

Headed by Richard Strauss, the boys' tennis team had another tough year. Only one returning letterman had two years of experience. Senior Bill Franklin made the team his sophomore and junior year. Three juniors, Robbie Ruck, Brad Tushaus and Brian Baldwin all had the benefit of only one year of experience while two sophs, Tracy Houston and Steve Baker, started with none but learned fast. Everyone had a chance to lead the team because a new captain was chosen before every match. There was no solid number one player as the positions changed from match to match.

Racketeers outdo adversaries

With three senior lettermen returning, Ann Jordan, Elsie Eagle and Ann Rahmel, the tennis team looked forward to a successful season. Their opening match against Northeast was a disappointing loss of 4-3. They also lost their second match to Clearwater 7-0, even with the support of such talented players as Carol Mullins and Jody Cole. Captain Eagle enjoyed the number one position followed by Jordan, Cole, Rahmel, and Mullins. Coached by Miss Kathy Johnson, the Rebel racquettes hoped to improve upon last year's 1-8 record.

Golfers club conference teams

Headed by a new coach, Randy Treadwell, the golf team swung into their season by defeating Northeast 3-2. Although the team had only one golfer coming back for his third year, this seemed no hindrance as they beat both Bishop Barry and Northeast in a Tri-meet by a score of 3½-1½-1½. Paul Gibson and Charley Gerber proved to be valuable players. Golfers who were playing for their first year and show great promise for the team were Rick Taylor and Randy Marriott. With players such as these the golf team looked forward to a better season nest year.

pastimes

Smiles caught amid contagion

Rebel smiles were as various as they were numerous this year. They ranged from sly simpers and plastered smirks to sincere guffaws. Students generated grins and found that they were worth the most when returned. Once infected with this strange contagion of friendliness, they realized it was impossible to discard it. Beaming faces swept the campus with jubilance and genuine radiance, and created good impressions. Smiles circulated the campus many times but were never worn out and revealed innate thoughts of their owners.

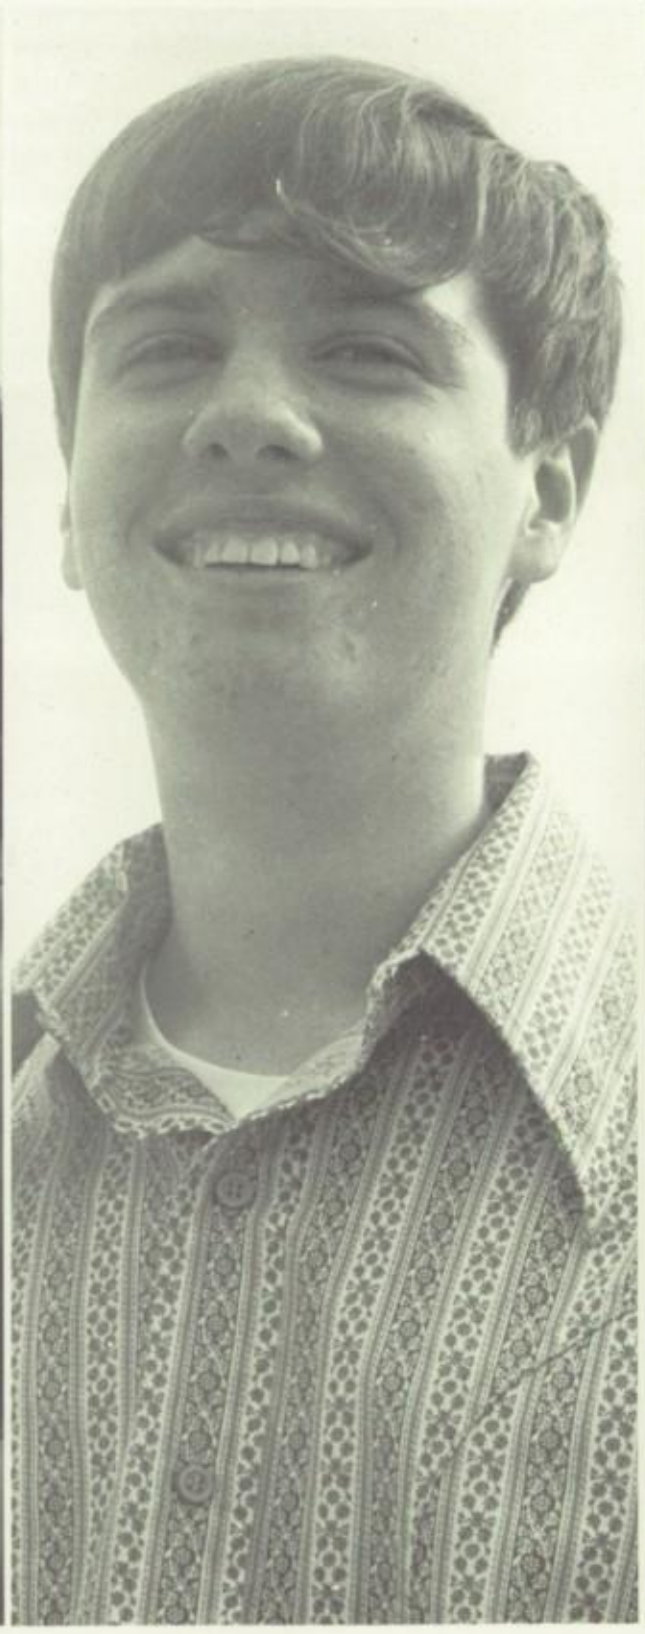
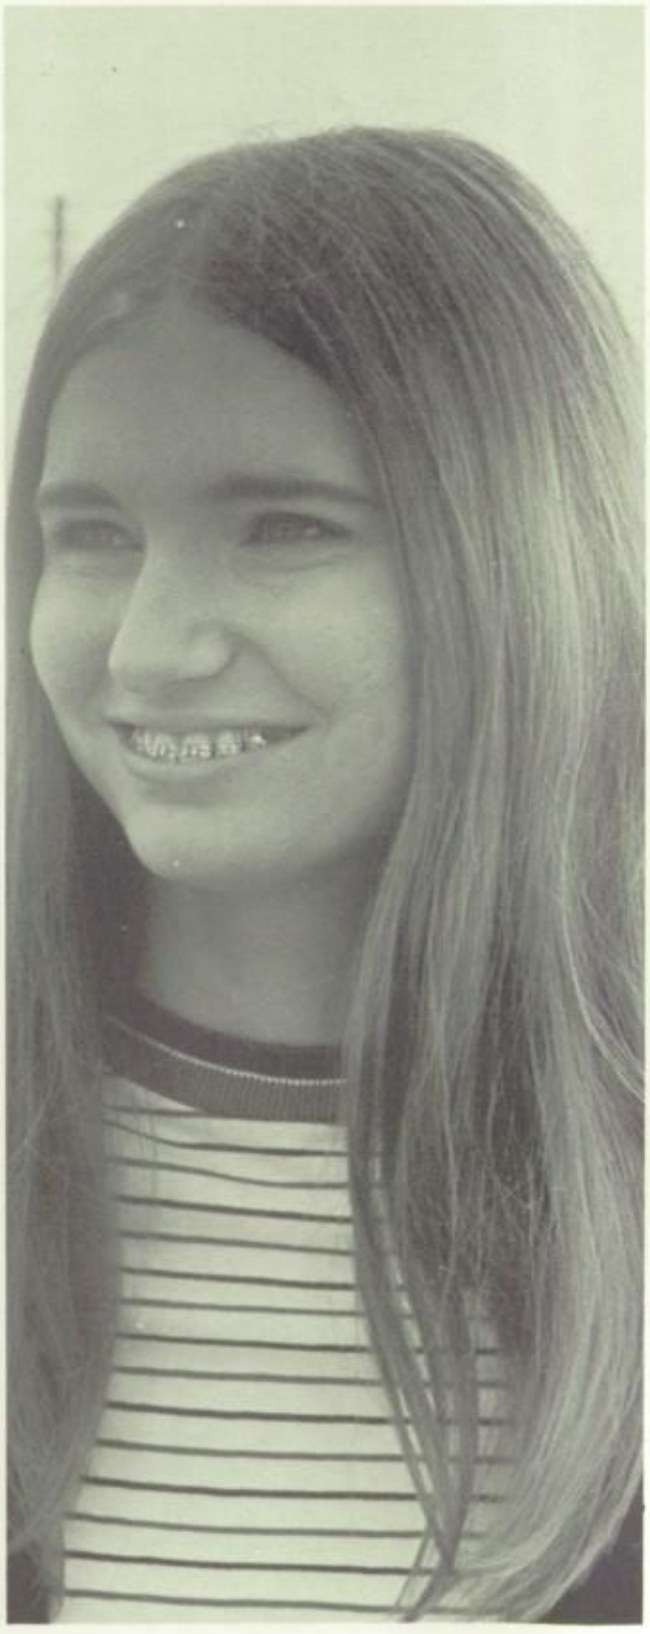
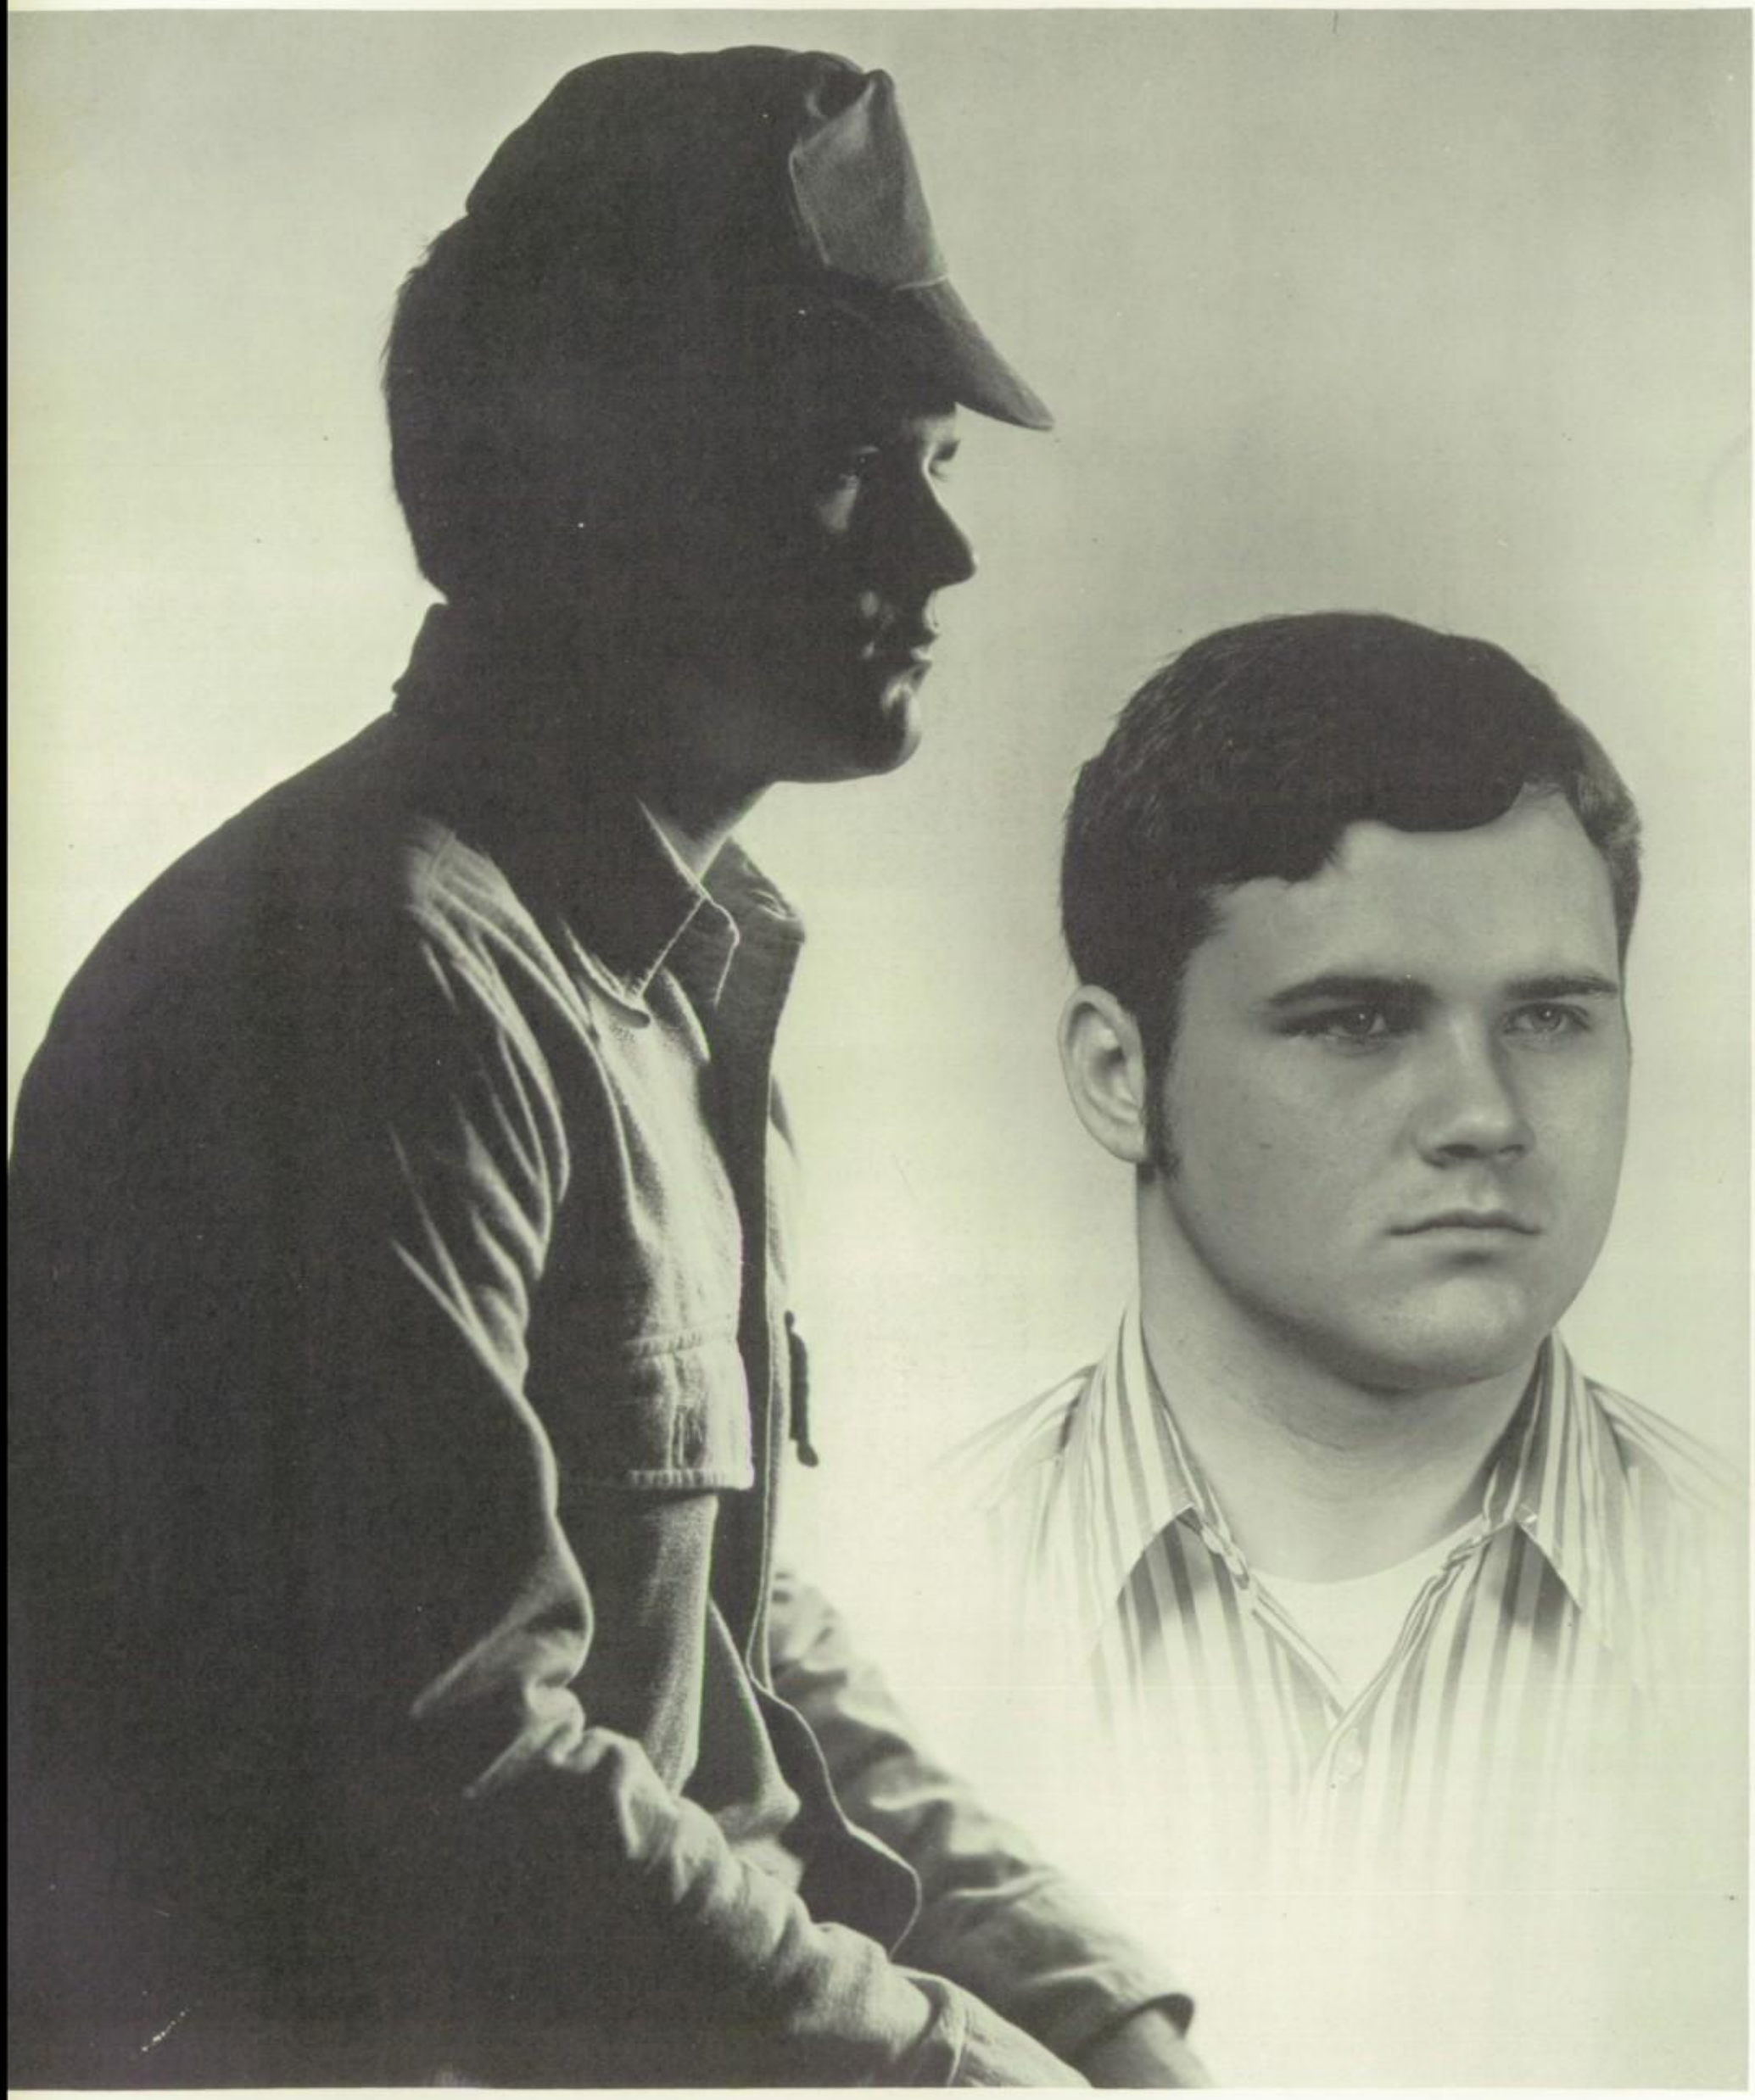
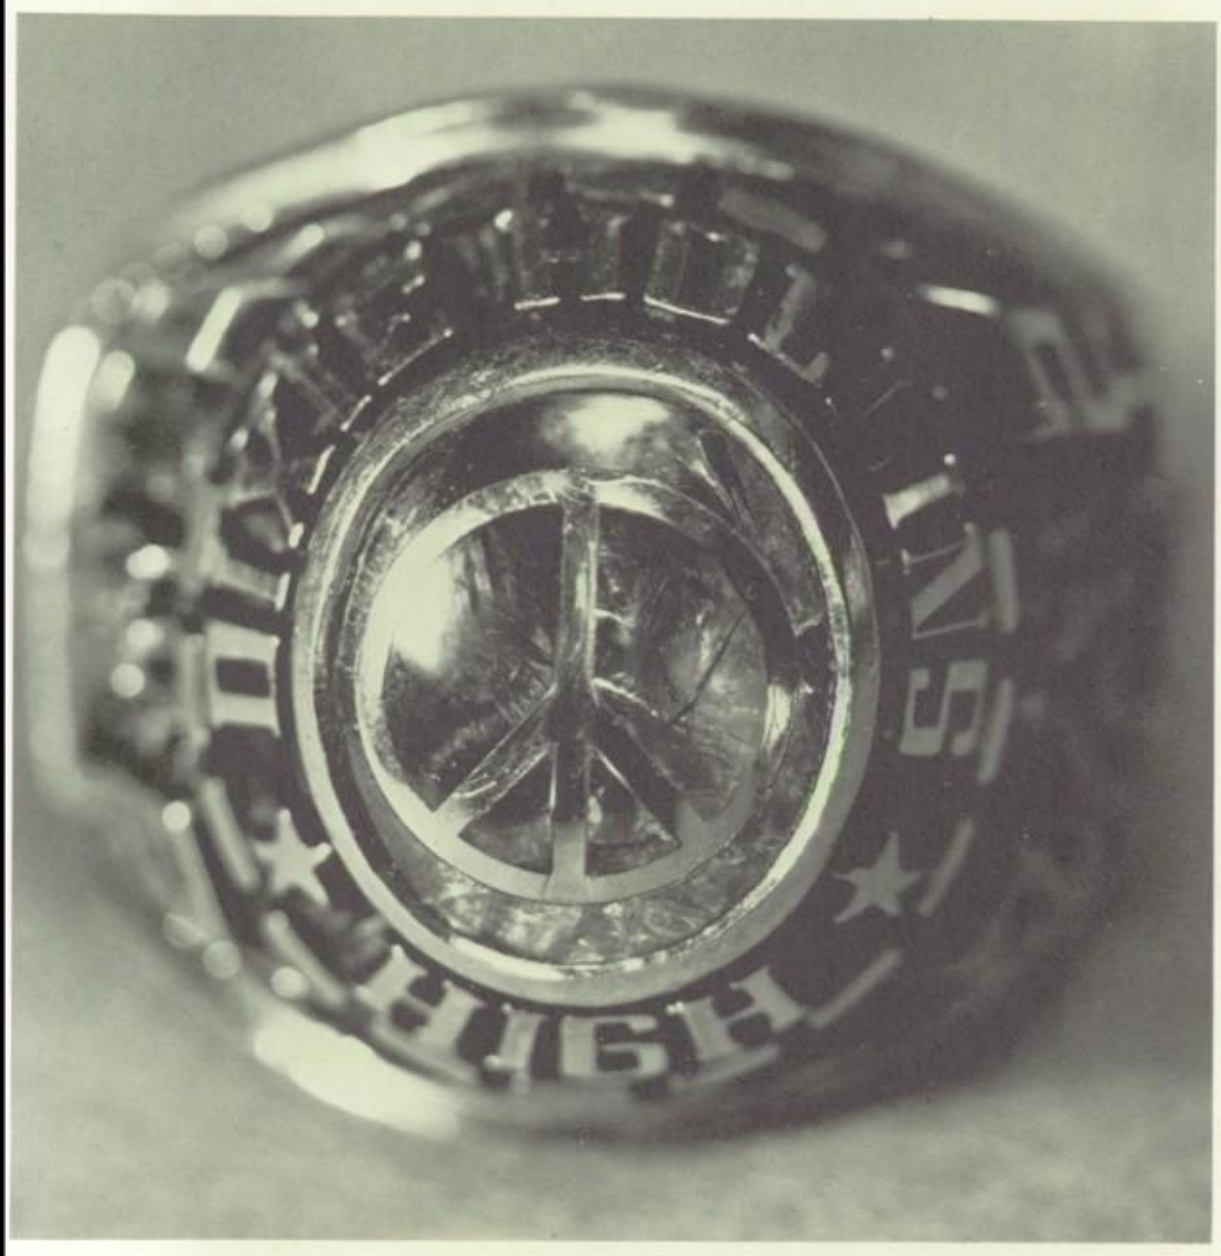
TWO WAYS OF LIFE









Peace pervades student life

Peace dominated the aspirations of young citizens. The difficulty in answering the war question reflected the already apparent depth of investigation, meditation, and understanding. Fellows sought answers and after much soul searching, settled climactic questions concerned with more than personal satisfaction and a monumental sense of duty. Confidence motivated some who realized peace needs a chance. The aura of peace that prevailed on campus continually increased in the hearts, minds, and the actions of its advocates.

Bell br-r-rings emancipation

Roaring motors, jubilant students and traffic jams characterized the campus of Dixie Hollins High as school dismissed each afternoon. Rebels rejoiced as they relieved their heavy minds of yet another day's toil. They welcomed the toll of the final bell. Scholars striving for goals a bit higher than most found it necessary to relax throbbing grey matter. Scattering quickly to various jobs and activities, students soon obliterated thoughts of studies. A discarded homework paper or a lost book was all that remained in the silent empty halls.

Rebels wage war on apathy

Peace, pollution, the war on poverty, and the war in Southeast Asia all posed seemingly insurmountable problems to the majority of youth. They professed beliefs in long-standing ideals; such as, peace and love for mankind through the songs they chanted. Although unequipped for solving the problems of world peace and poverty they alleviated some discomfort by their remembrance and concern. Many students campaigned against the growing problem of water pollution. Rebels resisted the temptations of apathy and plunged into deeper involvement.

Churn of events spark spirit

Spirit Week stimulated Rebels to stand tall for a team with a losing season. Displays of faith and loyalty exhilarated the mighty football team. To the theme of Las Vegas, Rojans raced their way to first place in the skit competition. Smiles and sequins sparked spirit from an anxious student body at coronation. The beauty and grace of Queen Marilyn and her court radiated enthusiasm throughout the week. Teary-eyed alumni infiltrated the festivities. Homecoming '70 materialized because of weeks of careful and tedious planning.

Expressions exude emotion

Diversified Rebel faces expressed their sensitivity responding without words. Some infatuated by the simplest of pleasures radiated with the enchantment from their veritable warmth, or their lollipops. Even the effortless transition from a pair of solemn lips into the full luminescence of a genuine smile provided a singular catalyst for its contagion. Still other students puzzled over the incoherence they experienced within themselves and their surroundings. They emoted frequently, a reflection of their mirrored expressions.

Fantasticks lampoon society

Weeks of diligent planning materialized into a superlative effort by the Drama Department. Backstage, the smell of greasepaint and the buzz of the audience stirred uneasiness and created tension among the cast of the Fantasticks. An unusual aspect of this play was that it required few props. The Mute supplied props from a box on stage. Bits of humor were supplied by the Old Man reciting Shakespeare and his Indian companion, Mortimer. A high point of the play was El Gallo's explanation of the many types and prices of rape. The play satirized contemporary life.

Leisure-lovers dawdle at lunch

Students found many new experiences at Dixie. Among them was the freedom to roam the campus at lunch. A billowy tree or a darkened hallway shaded Rebels from looming thoughts of that test in fifth period. Much pondering was done concerning the strange obstruction in their stomachs. Could it be the Rebel Special or that today's homework was just put aside completely last night? For some a crowded patio bestowed upon them a mood of serenity. Amidst this cluttered atmosphere, students delegated time for serious and solitary contemplation.

You have come a long way

Women's liberation provided feminine and masculine students with new opportunities for expression. Girls previously only alluded to the freedom permitted the more forceful sex. 1971 catapulted women further toward equality and their assumption of newfound roles in society. This new freedom revealed itself through the girls' dress, manner, opinions and impact upon the males. Some fellows reacted unaware of the proper course of action and found themselves strangely puzzled at this recently emancipated feminine creature.

Rebs terminate eventfilled year

As anticipation heightened, graduating students found themselves compelled to perfect final efforts. They attempted to focus their attentions on scholastic endeavors instead of sun-showered beaches and other alluring activities that summer vacation invited. A climactic atmosphere evolved as Rebels emptied glutted lockers and overstuffed notebooks. Meanwhile, Rebel minds remained clouded by the hustling and bustling of contemplating answers to questions of the future and evaluating the reoccurrences from their '70-71 memory banks.

Executives direct curriculum

The '70-'71 administration guided 120 teachers, almost 2,400 students, and a large staff through another great year. Serving his 7th term as principal, Kenneth Watson spent months planning an eight period day for future Rebs. Ass't Principal Shoup helped with assemblies while Robert Holmes supervised the technical/vocational areas. This year brought Joy Brown into administration as Dean of Girls. Deans Ruelf and Brown listened to students, wrote admits, and helped stabilize the dress code. The Athletic Dept. found experienced men in R. King and G. Stergeos.

Counselors provide answers

HHS counselors displayed helpful interest in student problems and activi-es. The guidance dept. welcomed Mrs. Virginia Poscover as another coun-elor. Mrs. Poscover also took over the cadet teachers, allowing Miss M. erqueron more time to devote to students interested in planning their col-ge years. Dept. Head, George Hoffman, helped each counselor as well as he students. Mr. Burris administered tests such as the DAT, PSAT, and SPT. Completing a great department, Mr. Cortwright offered advice to Rebs long with sponsoring the Dixie Chapter of NHS.

Dependence placed on staff

DHHS staff members proffered help to Rebels by typing, filing, fixing, and preparing. The tremendous task of moving into new offices was just one of the problems efficiently solved. Food production and preparation was guided by Gene Moss, cafeteria head. Maintaining the buildings and grounds was a large project expertly handled by Mr. Gaunt and the DHHS custodial staff. Ordering new books and keeping track of present ones were just two of the jobs done by the library staff. Dixie's clinic was kept functioning by Mrs. Mary Ather, students, and county nurse.

Dixie teachers trek over globe

Europe and the British Isles spelled excitement for quite a few of the Rebel profs. Rouser advisor, Marlene Swisher, saw 16,000 miles of the world during the summer. Kissing the Blarney Stone and visiting castles meant traversing the British Isles for Mrs. Dean and for Chester Pratt. Mrs. Damory, Mrs. Mauney, and Miss Nicolaou had a chance to visit the European mainland. Two DHHS teachers saw Europe in a different manner: Mrs. Bourgholtzer was a tour group hostess, and Midge Gilman and husband have chaperoned student travel-study programs for the past two summers.

New hobbies spark creativity

School isn't the only subject which interests Rebel instructors. Three members of the English Department display quite unusual talents. Midge Gilman rebuilds player pianos and works on her cars — a '56 T-Bird and '55 Packard. Marlene Swisher plays a medieval instrument, and LaNeave Mauney makes Flemish flowers. One of Dixie's 20 new teachers, Randolph Treadwell, makes as well as collects ceramic Buddhas. Photography dark rooms occupy many of Mr. VeHorn's and Mr. Drumm's hours. An active and enterprising hobby of Clyde Dotson's involves canoe and boat building.

Barn corrals team-teaching

Several new structures were built at Dixie this year, perhaps the most interesting one being a place commonly referred to as the "barn." "Team-teaching" in this educational studio offers advantages such as various sized classes and the availability of more audio-visual aids. For Holly Goddard, some of the more interesting highlights of teaching in the barn included the noisy activities of having a partition built between her composition classes and the American History classes, having most of the furniture arrive during school hours, and other such minor occurances.

Activities enliven free hours

Busy, productive, satisfied — when not actually teaching, many Hollins' faculty members work on other projects. Mr. Huff and Mr. Luttrell built and remodeled several buildings this past summer. A lakefront, vacation retreat is being developed by Clyde Dotson. Math teacher, Bettye Crane, spent a great deal of time in writing a textbook which is being used by every High School in Pinellas County. The efforts made by Mr. Cameron for our football team, Mrs. Moss and Mrs. Cockrell for DHHS productions, and Mr. Drumm for our award-winning band are 4 examples of busy profs.

Classes don't end for some

The summer found many of Dixie's teachers participating in county workshops. Mr. Drumm spent long hours involved in a course of Instrumental Music. Art enthusiast, Gretchen Dean, was involved in "Making Critical Evaluations About Art." Two of our Home Economists, Mary Lamb and Mrs. Moler, studied Family and Human Relationships. Doing post Masters work for guidance certification was English instructor/tennis coach, Richard Strauss, who studied for most of his summer "vacation." Very few of the Reb instructors had carefree, lazy holidays.

1970 - 1971

VOLUME XII

Senior Rebs further tradition

Graduation marked the end of one way of life and the start of a new one. The old life was the three-year climb to the distinction of being known as a senior; the new life was the start of the climb toward college or careers. The senior year was one of challenge and decision. "What college, what career, what path to pursue?" were questions in the minds of every senior. The years that follow will bear out how well each has utilized the knowledge presented him. The ultimate goal in all their minds was to assume a responsible position in a fast-moving technological society.

Juniors reach two extremes

Juniors round out end of year

Juniors delighted in the simple pleasures of youth. Already indoctrinated into Dixieland life, they searched for further meaning for the year ahead. Time for contemplation ceased to exist in the effervescent web of activity of each day. When the final bell rang, a leisurely relaxed atmosphere prevailed once more. The peace reflected not apathy but a special kind of feeling that portrayed the true meaning of pride. Complexity and simplicity entwined and developed individual personalities. Juniors learned to "stand tall for Dixie."

PUTTING IT projections ALL TOGETHER!

. . . putting it all together!

June . . . exodus of nearly 2,400 students from their academic environment . . . emptiness, briefly able to traipse through Dixie halls . . . while Rebs examine a multi-faceted summer . . . asphalt ribbons curling towards numerous destinations . . . cyclists intent on blazing new trails amidst the Florida woodlands . . . two magic words: the beach . . . shimmering, scorching white granules of sand . . . leaden heat, alleviated by joining life below the water's surface . . . communing with murkey depths of a piscine world . . . a haven and guitar bring soothing calm as summer slips away . . .

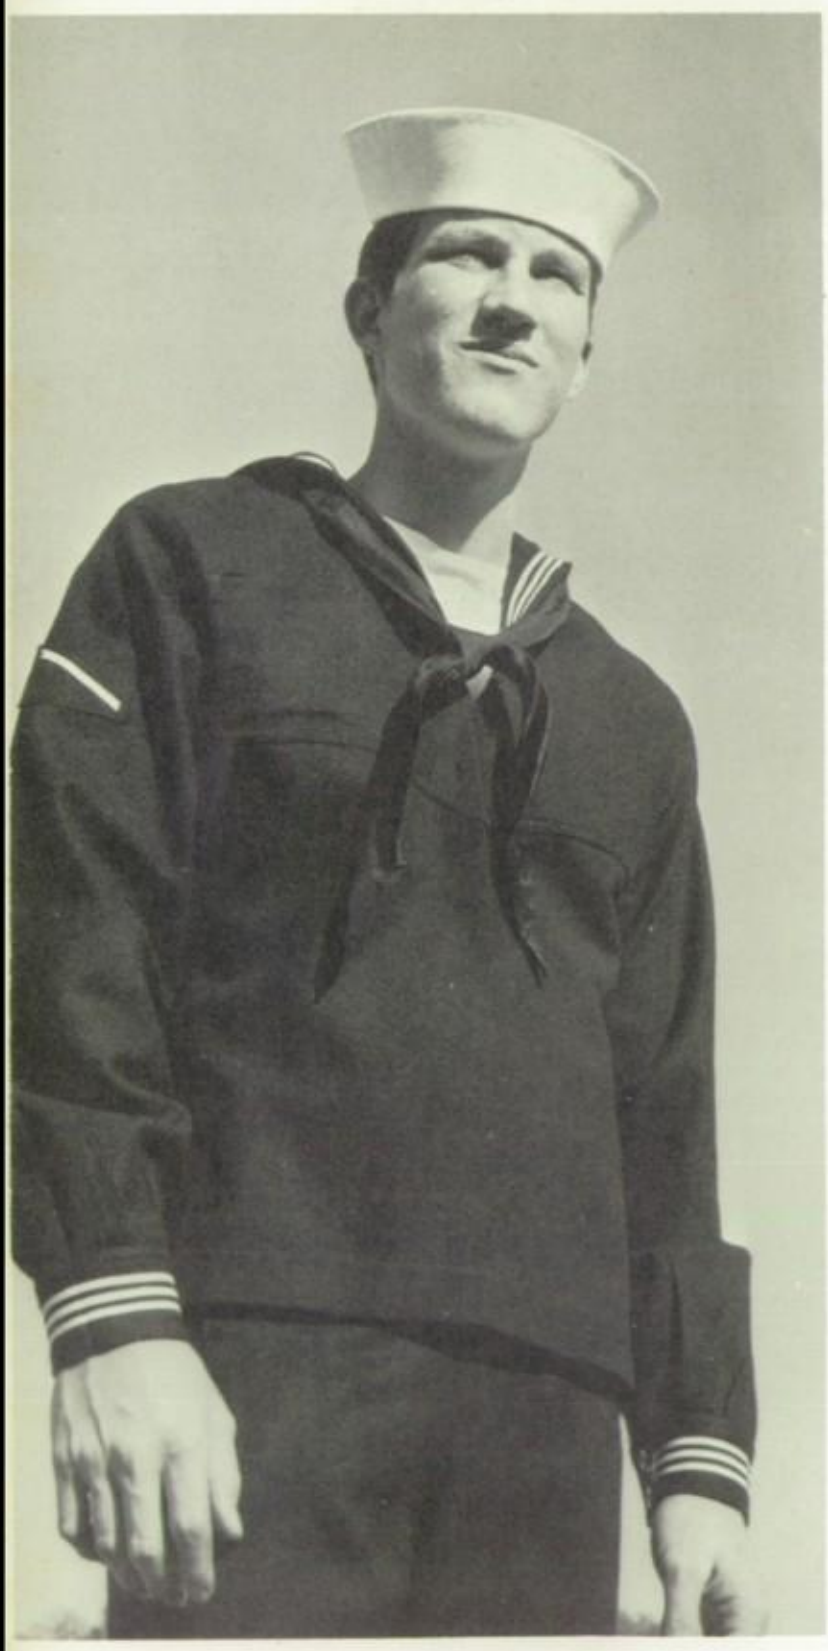
The present or future . . . for Rebels, a time to learn, work, play . . . love . . . a four-letter word to change the world . . . love . . . delicate as a newly spun web, shimmering in morning dew . . . tenacious as the silken threads entwined upon a bough . . . Rebels laughing, running, rushing into life . . . perhaps only to stumble over myriad perplexities . . . yet again to strive onward, reaching for perfection . . . finding one another . . . searching for identity, as elfin clouds in a vast, blue sky . . . with graduation, some friends lost . . . others remaining forever . . .

Candids top: Two Rebels greet each other on the beach at Pass-a-grille. Candid bottom left: Love and engagement also become part of Rebel activities.

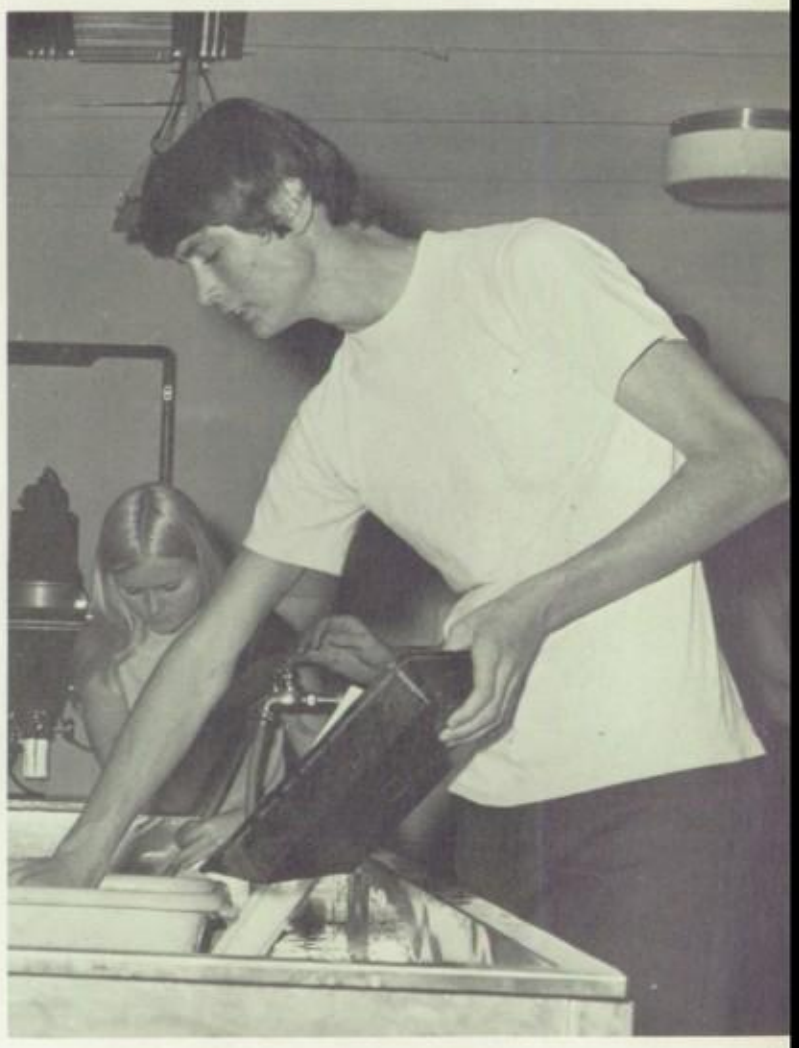
. . . putting it all together!

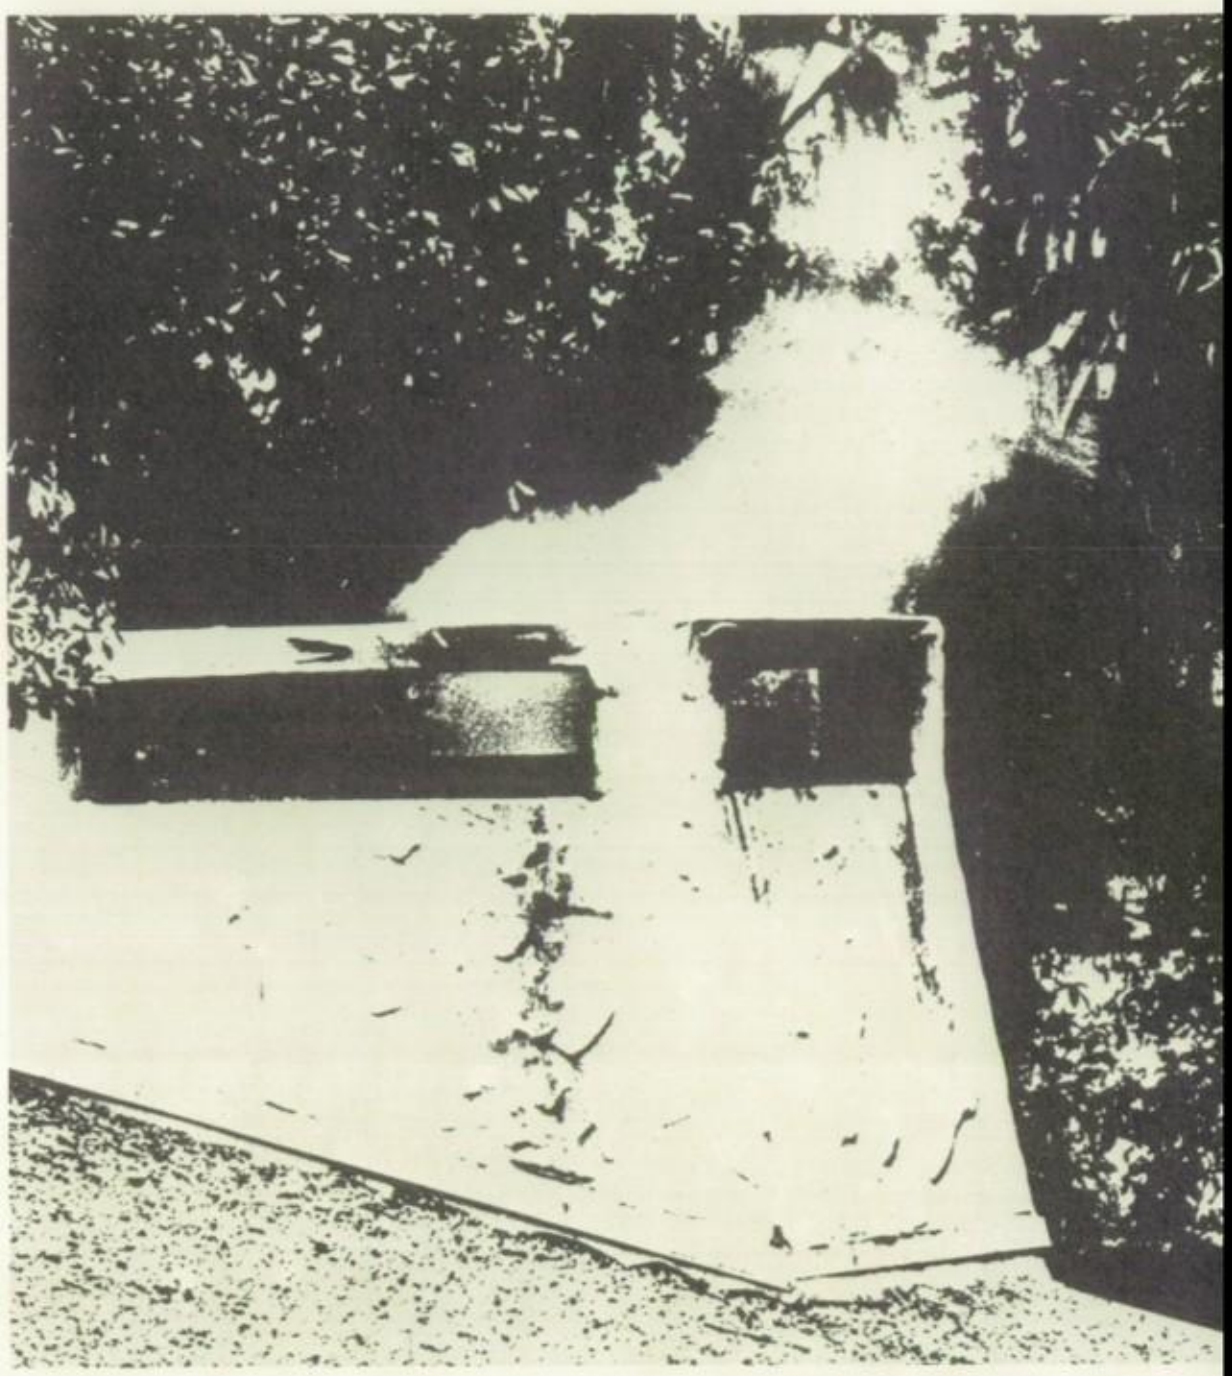
Graduation, symbol of concluded adolescence . . . approach of adulthood . . . decisions, immediate projections . . . maps of the future guide Rebs along roads of tomorrow . . . roads fringed with the mist of uncertainty . . . paved with the hope of youth . . . preparation . . . the draft, suspended as an ominous thundercloud . . . campuses, colleges . . . employment, necessity of survival . . . builders, constructing pillars of strength . . . photographers, recording the annals of history . . . beauticians, painting visions of charm . . . Rebs, permeating the width and breadth of society.

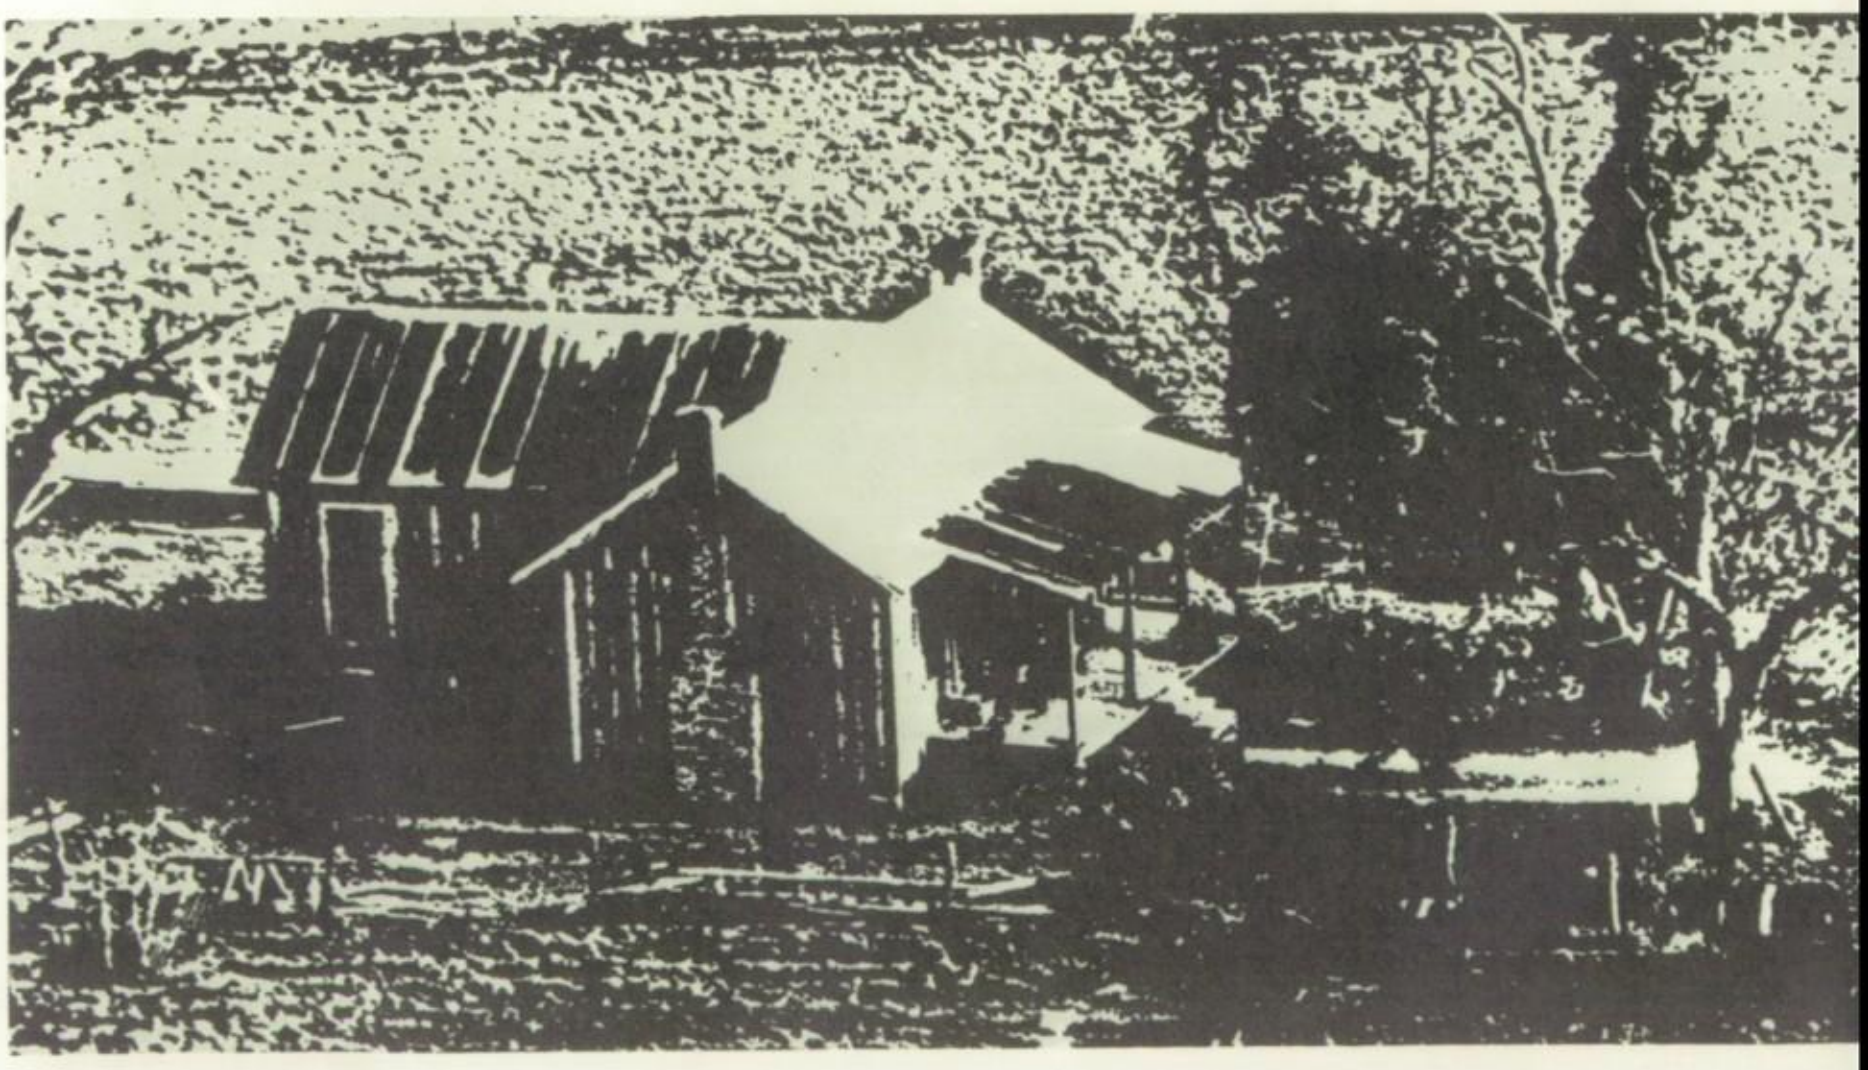
Candids left: Rebels step into the immediate future as beauticians, carpenters, and men of the naval reserve. Candids right: Rebels plan to return to academic worlds, whether St. Petersburg Junior College, or universities, while photographers capture their life in pictures.



SAINT PETERSBURG JUNIOR COLLEGE
ADMINISTRATION







. . . putting it all together!

As Rebels progress, problems become projects . . . pollution — could that mean people? . . . two people, four, sixteen . . . how many? . . . the population must be fed, clothed, sheltered . . . fed grain? clothed only by the wind? sheltered by thatched roofs? . . . clouds skimming 'cross an ailing sky . . . a bubbling stream — scrubbed so clean as to be dead from detergents . . . perplexities . . . imperious fibers woven through the strands of time . . . rioting mobs of humanity . . . but are they human? . . . solutions: bridges to be built . . . or torn asunder . . . Is there a more positive approach? . . .

. . . and many, many thanks

. . . to Mrs. Young for her contribution of time, effort and family . . .

. . . the ever exuberant staff who with much cooperation and energy turned out a great Dixie Legend . . .

. . . the unpredictable Byron Kennedy for coming when we needed him most . . .

. . . Mr. Watson and staff for patience and assistance . . .

. . . our generous patrons . . .

. . . Paul Baker from Bryn-Alan and Ro-mo for taking great portraits and processing color pictures . . .
